Model T

ON the bus trip out to Seattle for the Fair, we ended up next to an elderly handy-man from Denver, who in a slow, steady mountain drawl, filled our ears with a running account of his first Model T.

Winding his long-stemmed watch ("37-jewel Switch," he proudly told us), he related how his T-Model, faithful conveyance that it was, would run on any available or readily-appropriated fuel.

"Pa was a painter," he said, "and when we ran out of gasoline or coaloil for the car and wanted to go huntin', we'd just adjust the air mixture, pour some of pa's banana oil paint thinner in and away we'd go."

"You know," he added, with a philosophical tilt to his grizzled jaw, "They don't make cars that run on banana oil no more."

Last week in the Century 21 Coliseum at the Fair we stood open-mouthed before the X-15, General Motors' conception of the car of the future—low-slung, needle-nosed, radar - controlled, with a jet engine and glass enclosed cockpit.

And, with an air of abandon, we checked the fuel specifications. Our Denver handyman was right.

They just don't make cars that run on banana oil no more.

Canada is in good financial condition but its one great liability is climate, which meteorologists believe could be greatly ameliorated by influencing the weather from the moon. If, however, the weather of Canada could be changed, so could that of other countries, — the tropics as well as the colder countries. We know what the moon does to our tides.

Wherever we were born, we have taken the climate of our fathers as something permanent and unchangeable; but this is a mistake. Practical ways will be found to adjust climate, and this will be of great advantage to all nations. It may be the one effort which will result in a useful and permanent United Nations Organization. The thought has tremendous possibilities for good. At present, it looks as if using the moon as a base of climatic control may be the answer.

Ownership Of The Moon

An astronomer stated to me, "The moon is no good; it is dusty, void of water, with rocks near the surface." When in Africa and Johannesburg, I was told that this was the natural terrain of the richest part of Africa. Most of the diamonds, gold, and now uranium are being found in the most barren portion of that continent. It is very possible even that the moon may give us the richest discoveries of these minerals. And the expense of getting back and forth from the moon may prevent what might otherwise be a great decline in the prices of diamonds, gold, and platinum.

This discussion about going to the moon reminds me of my boyhood days in Gloucester, Mass., when I used to listen to the seafaring captains in my family. At first they went to India and China; but when gold was discovered in California, they sailed their ships around South America and up the west coast to profit from the gold rush of 1848. They went on a four-months trip from Boston to get this gold and take passengers to California. But it will take only four days to go to the moon at the speed which is being counted upon. I am told that after a port has been secured and the landing made, safe, this speed can be reduced to what will seem normal to modern youth.

Psychology And Business

Mr. James P. W. Davidson, in an address given in Wellesley this week, thinks that the talk about "going to the moon" will have a stimulating influence upon general business. It will raise the hopes, expectations, and enterprise of many people,—especially young people. It should help general business as the automobile did fifty years ago, and as the discovery of gold in California did a hundred years ago. In the meantime, it certainly should indirectly increase newspaper advertising during the next year.

God's Call

Lesson for November 18, 1962

There is a word older than the Christian religion to express what happens to a man when God gets hold of him. The word is "saved." To its hearers in times past the word meant rescued, delivered, set free. That is still what it means, though many Christians are not aware of it. Some people, especially people without religion, think that when a person becomes a Christian he gives up his freedom and his pleasure, and thereafter lives a tied-down wretched life. Quite the contrary. The Christian is not tied, he is united, not chained but free set free.

Saved from What?

So much is said about this in the New Testament that we can take only one single passage of the many that have been listed for this lesson: Ephesians 2:1-10. The great word here is "made alive." The new Christian hasn't stopped living, he just never knew before what it is to live. The difference between before and after is the difference between death and life. What kind of life is the "dead" life? Three things are said of it: it is a life enslaved by the "spirit of disobedience;" it is a life enslaved to impulses and passions shared with the "beasts;" it is a life under "wrath." To put it into our everyday language, we may say that what God saves us from is (1) the habit of disobedience to God and how self-destructive it is to be living as an enemy of God; (2) the habit of pleasure self-indulgence; and (3) an existence shadowed by the constant fact that one has turned one's back on God himself. From all this, God calls us away.

A reader will object at this point. Does this mean that all Christians were at one time criminals, outright and outrageous sinners? Do I have to be God's enemy before I can be his friend? Not at all. Many readers of these lines cannot remember a time when they did not think of themselves as Christians. In many cities there are "rescue missions" in the dirtiest and meanest parts of town, for derelicts, hoboes, down-and-outs. These rescue missions do a great deal of good. But there are also what can be called Prevention Missions if they do their job right; ordinary run-of-mine unpretentious main-line Christian churches which by their life and work are every day saving their young people from starting on the road that ends in Skid Row.

Whether it's a prevention or a rescue mission, what we're all either dragged out of or kept out of, is all the same. So what is it that saves us? Again it's all the same. We are saved by "grace," that is, God might have let us go — "good riddance to bad rubbish." But instead, he cared intensely for us, the pure and holy God actually loved and loves the soiled and selfish race of man. The point is that it is not because we were so good, God was bound to save us. He was so good that he saved us.

Saved through What?

One thing is made clear all through the Bible. If man—the race of man or some particular man—is going to be saved, he cannot save himself. God saves him; God's grace that is to say his freely given love, saves us. But a life preserver will not hold a man up if he will not take hold of it. A word of wisdom might as well be a word of foolishness if no one pays any attention.

Saved for What?

If a lifeguard has rescued a drowning man at the beach, the rescued man will not be so silly as to set up a tent beside the lifeguard's chair and every five minutes for the rest of the summer come to thank the lifeguard again. He will be eternally grateful for having been rescued. But if he never thought before, he may well think now: My life was almost wasted awiw, and now it has been given back to me; what shall I do with it? So when God's call comes to a person, it is not a call to a perpetual vacation, it is a call to work. We are saved not because what we have done earns the priceless love of God. We are saved to do the kind of work that God can do only through human beings—saved to work with God.

Dear Mr. Vaughan:

I am one of your subscribers, have been so since I left the Field of Baptist Churches which once composed the Evergreen Field.

Thank you for the enlargement of the TIMES - VIRGINIAN, for still having the Calvin Robinson's to help for it wouldn't seem like Appomattox if they were not there.

Thanks for printing the Sunday School Lesson for each Sunday of the calendar year. Some of us read it. It is helpful, as well as reading about the personals. We do not have too much religion in our nation or in Virginia.

Cuban Crisis Brings Call For Added Support Of Savings Bonds Program

Mr. J. Garland Plunkett, Appomattox County Bond Chairman and C. Francis Cocke, Virginia's Savings Bonds Chairman, today called on Appomattox County citizens for added support of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program in light of the Cuban crisis.

In a letter to Mr. Plunkett, Appomattox County Savings Bond Chairman, Mr. Cocke repeated an appeal from Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon which stressed the "vital importance of keeping our country strong" and stated that "the help and participation of every citizen is a necessary part of each national strength."

Secretary Dillon's appeal noted that Savings Bonds contribute greatly to the economic strength on which our defense efforts depend, and called the act of buying a Savings Bond "a splendid expression of faith in our American system so that we may strengthen it for future generations."

In making his appeal, the Secretary told the State Chairman, "I know we can count on your Transgathlete leadership in bringing the Savings Bonds story to your fellow citizens in a new and vigorous way."

Secretary Dillon's letter to the State Chairman reads as follows: "The recent Cuban crisis has proven beyond doubt the vital importance of keeping our country strong. We know that the challenges to freedom goes on. It can be successfully met only by our determination and physical ability to resist pressures and threats.

"The help and participation of every citizen is a necessary part of such national strength, and I am addressing this personal letter to you. As a volunteer leader in the United States Savings Bonds program, you are in a position to direct the patriotic instincts of the people into a most constructive channel — the purchase of extra bonds as an investment in national security.

"Savings Bonds, as you know, contribute in a major way to the economic strength on which our defense efforts depend. Moreover, they build financial security for the purchaser, enabling him to plan realistically for important needs of the future. Finally, the act of buying a bond is a splendid expression of faith in our American system so that we may strengthen it for future generations.

"I know we can count on your imaginative leadership in bringing the Savings Bonds story to your fellow citizens in a new and vigorous way."

"A magic world is a lovely book, And all you have to do is look; And if you read the pages through

The magic world belongs to you"

The seventh grades students of the Pamplin Elementary School have found magic in the following books which they have read recently:

To Island of the Blue Dolphin by Scott O'Dell (Newberry Medal winner of 1961)

This is the story of Karana a Indian girl, who spent 18 years on an abondoned island off the coast of California. She was always waiting for the return of the ship which left her and her brother on this island. Karana was on the alert for a pack of wild dogs that had killed her younger brother. Constantly on guard for the Aleutians that hunted for otter — also the problem of food faced Karana. I've told you only a few of the dangers and incidents of this interesting book. Why not read it and find out the other happenings?" Malcolm Gray Inge, 7th grade, Pamplin

Fish Hook Island Mystery by Wendell Farmer

This is a story of a deserted island. There was an old shack which the children, Moose, Chal, and Dorry decided to use for a club house. Mr. Pierce an old man, wanted the island for himself. You will want to read this to see what happened when a great hurricane came up! Gary Thomas Jamerson, 7th grade, Pamplin

Red Drums Warning by Lindquist Wells

Haiti, land of voodoo drums, is the unusual setting for this brisk adventure tale which took place in Africa. The main characters are Teebo and Kit. Read it for a real adventure. Gary Morris, 7th grade, Pamplin.

Up and Away by Miriam Young

This is a horse story — of two girls who earned their own money for riding lessons. Their riding master was strict and quick tempered. If you like horses and riding, this is the book for you! Frances Bates, 7th grade, Pamplin

Atomic Experiments For Boys by Raymond Yates

This story is about Prof. E. O. Lawrence of the University of California. One of his inventions was the cyclotron. It was called a merry - go - around or an electromagnetic slingshot. By the use of the cyclotron many elements have been changed. Read this book for many other exciting science adventures. Malcolm Coleman, 7th grade, Pamplin

Too Much Dog by Aylesa Torsee

Fidel Ortego picked up the tin pail of water that he had just pumped from the back yard. As he started for the kitchen, he sensed over to himself reasons why this was an especially "good day". First of all it was Saturday - Christmas was only a few days away! He saw a Dalmation lumbering toward him — a strange dog whom he fed— The surprise is when Fidel reads that a twenty - five dollar reward is offered to anyone who finds this lost dog. Read to see if he got the money and what happened to Too Much Dog! . . .

Billy Brown, 7th grade, Pamplin

Mystery Rock of the Mountain by Mary C. Jane

My favorite character in this book is Anne because she did not have any friends at all. Her brothers were invited to go places with his friends — but Anne never could go. She became a very important person by helping to solve the mystery of the missing portrait of a young girl. Read this for a real thriller! Shirley Richardson, 7th grade, Pamplin
